

BRIGHTER OUTLOOK LOOMS FOR IOWA FARMERS

Norman Baker
(HIMSELF)

"Hello, Folks"

TROOPS—when all is done it will be found that there will be no violence in Muscatine County for the testing—the farmers realize their backs are to the wall—a fool law passed by interests that commercialize on human souls and cows—just another job for repelling the law next year—it will take some strength to do it also—you must watch your politicians—one thing the troops have done—IT KILLS GOVERNOR TURNER'S OPPORTUNITY FOR 1932—it is rumored that a scheme is on hand to arrest me—some say the warrants are already issued—let it come—if I should have any political aspirations in 1932—the arrest will not hurt a bit—it would be some campaign—one against the one who sent the troops to cause his arrest—the public would think twice just the same as Mr. Lenker and Mitchell are stronger in the eyes of the farmers than ever before—if arrest of me is made—everyone will know WHY—just a scheme with the idea of feathering somebody's nest—but it may result in a new law for the farmers—don't try to scare me—don't let the boys say you can't blame the boys—many of them are farmers sons—their dad's have cows—they too are against the test—but they are soldiers, obedient to orders—your officials are the ones to remember and some officers when the time comes around.

BANKS—the big boys are getting it too—a large bank in Philadelphia—Franklin Trust Co. and its four branches CLOSED—Uncle Sam's bank, the Postal Savings Bank WILL NEVER CLOSE—2 per cent and safety is better than 3 1/2 per cent with worry—the West Liberty affair plainly shows the hand writing on the door—bankers don't like me—WHY—because too many truths are told—the rumbling all started in my estimation—because those who could—brother bankers—would not help the American Savings Bank—think of the feeling of confidence there would be today in Muscatine, if no bank was closed or any possibility of others closing after the slow draining process that the American experienced, nearly a million drawn out over a period of about six or seven months.

JOURNAL—someone said they had the stage all set for maybe an "EXTRA" heralding my arrest or something of that kind—that was to be last Monday or Tuesday—why not bring out the "extra" anyway—and tell them the warrant is not for my arrest—they brought out extras for less important things than that—for "Honey"—a "pin dropping" is important enough for some to make extras—especially when they have malice and jealousy in their hearts—LISTEN DAILY FOR THE CALL OF "EXTRA, EXTRA, Muscatine's Second Newspaper has a scoop"—price 5c.

LIFE—how mysterious—it ends with all of us the same way—Senator Morrow passed out without pain—suddenly—went to sleep—never regained—he had just finished a speech the Sunday before—he had just invited a number of, in fact 10 aviation manufacturers for lunch—some arrived, whom word could not be gotten to—they instead of a lunch—they learned of the Senator dying—HOW UNEXPECTED—did it all—is—but all in all—when I go, I expect to go the same way—he who overtaxes the nerve system—MUST PAY THE PENALTY—but when one is gone—there are no bothers left.

COMPTROLLER of Currency has issued a call to all national banks for a statement of their condition at the close of business September 29th—there will be some mighty bad showings—and some scrambling to get under cover.

Iowa Calls On Communities To Aid Own Unemployed

OUTLINE PLAN TO GIVE HELP TO THE NEEDY

Public Improvements Strongly Urged by Committee

DES MOINES, Ia. (INS)—A plea was made today to each Iowa community to undertake its own burden in providing relief for unemployment in Iowa during the winter months, according to resolutions of the state committee on unemployment announced today by A. L. Erick, secretary.

The committee recommends to each community that it undertake public improvements in some form or other to provide at least part time employment for each idle person. "Such projects, we believe, are better than supporting able bodied persons in idleness through doles or charity," the resolution stated.

The state committee in outlining its program for winter relief urged that each business firm make an effort to retain on its payroll each of its present employees and prevent the situation from becoming any more acute.

The resolutions recommended that parents insist that their children continue in school.

The committee requested that all persons buy Iowa coal this winter to give a market to the coal mined by Iowa labor, thus aiding the state situation.

In regard to the local community problem, the committee urges each community to aid in reducing agricultural products which would otherwise be wasted or injured by frost.

The committee said that they feel that Iowa is capable of handling her unemployment problem and that it rested with each community to handle the situation.

WASHINGTON (INS)—The Burlington railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to abandon certain portions of its line between Mt. Pleasant and Keokuk, Iowa, and to construct a new line connecting that track to connect with a branch line between Fort Madison and Batavia, Iowa.

Argue Over Admission Of Evidence on Tax Evasion

By JAMES L. KULGALLEN
FEDERAL COURT BUILDING, CHICAGO (INS)—Legal debate over the admission of documentary evidence amounting to a confession that Al Capone, the country's "big shot" racketeer, had never paid a dime of income taxes was staged in federal court today at the trial of Capone for alleged tax evasion.

The controversy between lawyers of both sides came when the first witness of the day, George G. Slenitz, chief of the power of attorney section of the Bureau of Internal Revenue at Washington, D. C., was put on the stand to identify letters from the government's files.

Vigorous objections were immediately raised by Capone's lawyers with the result that Judge

CHICAGO SLAYERS DENIED REHEARING

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (INS)—Frank Bell and Richard Sullivan, Chicago, convicted of slaying Christ Fattas in June, 1930, today were denied a rehearing of their case by the supreme court.

The court at the June term affirmed the death sentence imposed upon the men by a lower court.

Oct. 16 was the date set for the execution.

The court also refused a rehearing to James "Pur" Sammons, alleged gangster. The court at the June term refused to release Sammons from the penitentiary on a writ of habeas corpus. Sammons had been paroled while serving sentences for both murder and robbery and it was his contention that the parole applying to the murder sentence also applied to the robbery term. The supreme court held otherwise during its last term.

Miners Describe Many Injustices They Suffer

By C. EDWARD MORRIS
HARLAN, Ky. (INS)—On either side of the entrance to the Le-wallen hotel, most pretentious hotel in Harlan, Ky., heart of one of the richest soft coal mining fields in the world, is fastened a gilt-lettered, glass-covered sign bearing the legend:

"Welcome, coal operators!"

"They ought to take those signs down," said a miner to the writer, "and nail one of them over Judge Jones door and the other over Sheriff Blair's."

"Hell's going to pop wide open Harlan town one of these days. Don't forget it's less than eleven years since armed miners shot it out with state troops not so far from here before the federal troops could get here."

The day before this miner had been released from the Harlan county jail after 54 days' imprisonment for being unable to post a

WOMAN VICTIM OF GANG GUNS

Two Dead Dogs Found With Body in a Parked Auto

CHICAGO (INS)—A flashily dressed young woman was found shot to death today in the rear seat of a bullet-pierced sedan that had been parked all night on the south side.

Two dogs, also dead from bullet wounds, were in the car. The sedan also contained a jug of wine, a suit case, a hand bag, and a man's hat.

The license plates of the car had been issued to Freida McErlane, whose address was given as that of Frank McErlane, notorious gangster. Police believe the woman was McErlane's wife or sister.

Mrs. Bernice Farmer told police the sedan was parked near her home when she and her husband entered the house at 10 o'clock last night. She said they thought the woman inside had fallen asleep and did not investigate further.

The victim's body was slumped at one end of the rear seat. Examination disclosed the woman had been dead at least ten hours.

Seeking possible motives for the shooting, police declared the gang dominated by McErlane had been close to open warfare with a mob controlled by John Quigley and Tom O'Connell.

Spike O'Donnell, south side beer baron, also is said to have trouble with McErlane over control of territory.

Police surmised the woman lost her life in a desperate gangland battle.

The slain woman is said to fit the description of Peggy Miller, known to have been McErlane's recent "pal." Peggy was among those arrested more than a year ago when McErlane was shot.

At the address which the gangster gave police as his own, neighbors told detectives the house was occupied by a "George and Marian Ryan."

TWENTY KILLED IN CHINESE ROW

Japanese Planes Drop Fifty Bombs Upon City Streets

By JOHN GOETTE
PEIPING (INS)—Twenty civilians were reported killed today in the Chichow area when a fleet of twelve Japanese planes dropped fifty bombs in an attempt to demolish the Chichow railway station and locomotive sheds, according to information received by Chinese authorities.

While the object of the attack was said to have been demolition of the railway terminus, the bombs were reported to have been dropped over a wide area. The victims were peasants and farmers living in the vicinity.

The reported attack came upon the heels of renewed Chinese air force activity in the Peiping area, which prompted attaches of the Japanese legation to mount anti-aircraft guns in the legation quarter.

The guns were mounted outside the former Austrian legation, which now serves as Japanese military headquarters. Offices of the American naval attaché are only a few hundred feet away.

SEEK MURDERER OF POLITICIAN

Body of Chicagoan Is Found in Capone's Stronghold

CHICAGO (INS)—Underworld haunts were raided today by detectives seeking the gangland executioners of Victor C. Frankiewicz, 40, politician and reputed saloon owner, whose body was found last night in Cicero, the former stronghold of Al Capone.

The victim's body, with a gaping bullet wound in the temple, was discovered after residents of the neighborhood heard nine shots. Police believed the killers took Frankiewicz from the saloon operated by his brother and transported him to the spot where he was murdered.

Frankiewicz recently was an unsuccessful candidate for congress. He maintained a real estate office of the southwest side of Chicago. The victim's mother and sister were unable to suggest a motive for the slaying.

CREDIT PLAN IS OUTLINED TO GOVERNOR

Turner Tells Bankers About Corn Price Committee Plan

By FRED H. LOCKWOOD
DES MOINES, Ia. (INS)—A brighter outlook loomed today for Iowa farmers and business men with the support of Governor Dan W. Turner and the state bankers association to President Hoover's efforts to make federal funds available through a more liberal credit system.

The officers of the Iowa State Bankers association wired the president that they would do all within their power to aid the federal reserve system in outlining the program.

J. B. McDougal, governor of the federal reserve bank at Chicago, met with about fifty bank and insurance executives at their meeting yesterday and outlined the working of the federal reserve system and where it could be altered for immediate aid to Iowa.

Plan is outlined Governor Turner appeared before the bankers yesterday afternoon and outlined the program of the corn price committee whereby funds of Iowa banks would be made available for the farmer through a central holding company, similar to the national program suggested by President Hoover.

The governor lauded the president's action and expressed his belief that he had in mind relief for his native state when he made his proposals.

The bankers, meeting to discuss the crucial condition of Iowa banks formulated a plan whereby the capital of Iowa banks would protect one another. An understanding was reached to send a delegation to the larger cities and others would represent Iowa banks.

John Hasbrouck, president of the state bankers association, named E. F. Kauffman, president of the Bankers Trust Co., of Des Moines chairman of a committee to work through federal reserve system in aiding the distressed banks. Other members of the committee were: Mr. Hasbrouck; Frank Warner, secretary of the state association; Walter T. Robinson, cashier of the Citizens National bank, at Hampton; William J. Lewis, president of the Harlan National bank, Harlan; Fred Pigge, president of the Oskawville National bank, Oskawville; J. E. Hamilton, president of the Merchants National bank, Cedar Rapids; F. F. Everest, president of the First National bank, Council Bluffs; William Heuer, president of the Union Savings Bank and Trust company, Davenport; R. B. Dalton, cashier of the First National bank, Le Mars.

Bankers Take Action Action similar to that of the Iowa organization was taken Wednesday by the National Bankers Association at their convention in Buffalo.

An effort will be made to bring all state insurance banks into the federal reserve system along with loosening the credit policies, both recommendations which were made by Hoover.

BANDIT ADMITS KILLING OFFICER

Ballistics Experts Are Given Hard Blow By Confession

BELVIDERE, Ill. (INS)—The reality of evidence produced in murder investigations by ballistics experts suffered a blow today in the confession of Marvin Howe, 25, who admitted, police said, that he is the bandit who last Dec. 13 killed deputy sheriff Harry Wilkinson during a holdup at Herbert, near here. Col. Calvin C. Goddard, Chicago ballistics authority, swore in court that the gas which killed Wilkinson was owned by two bandits now serving life sentences in Joliet prison.

Col. Goddard's testimony was so impressive that ten jurors voted to send the murder suspects, Joseph Skiestokes and Victor Zambrowski of Rockford, to the electric chair. The jury disagreed, however. Instead of being retried for murder, the men were sentenced for committing a series of holdups.

Col. Goddard was the star prosecution witness in the trial of Skiestokes and Zambrowski, which was held here. He said his tests proved beyond a doubt that the bullet taken from the deputy's body had been fired from a revolver found in possession of the defendants.

Howe, arrested in St. Paul, told police he killed Wilkinson with a revolver which he borrowed from a resident of Sycamore, Ill., the weapon is of the same make as the gun exhibited at the Skiestokes-Zambrowski trial.

Approaching Conference Between Hoover And Premier Laval Is of Much Importance

WASHINGTON (INS)—The approaching conference between President Hoover and Premier Laval of France, today apparently carried the hopes of the world for solution of the three great international problems affecting war debts, reparations and disarmament.

On the outcome of their deliberations are heads of the American and French governments, it was believed here, rests the fate of the European demand for a longer holiday on war debts.

hope for a new world disarmament treaty at Geneva and the German plea for reduction in reparations. All three problems were deemed inseparably linked from the American viewpoint.

The two governments are the most powerful in the world. The two nations control the world's gold reserve. It was conceded both must agree to any program touching debts, reparations or disarmament before it can be applied as a remedy to the world's economic ills.

From recent developments, it appeared certain Mr. Hoover and M. Laval would discuss the American suggestion for a two year extension of the war debt moratorium, the creation of a consultative pact between France and America, further reduction of armaments, proclamation of a world holiday in naval construction, revision of the Versailles treaty with a downward slashing of reparations and possibly the calling of an international economic conference to establish international unity in fighting world depression.

SALARIES CUT BY BOARD FOR DRAINAGE HELP

Joint Board Slashes
Pay at Spirited
Meeting Here

Inaugurating a program of retrenchment by making drastic slashes in salaries for employees of drainage district No. 13, the joint board of supervisors of Muscatine and Louisa counties, in session here this afternoon, began with the reduction of the salary of H. S. McKinney, engineer for the district pumping plant from $200 to $150.

Spirited arguments between Fred Kaufman, chairman of the Muscatine county board, and some of the Louisa county members and land owners, occurred during the meeting.

Local Board Opposed
Members of the Muscatine county board, with the exception of A. J. Altkruse, voted against a motion offered by Supervisor Belk of Louisa county which fixed the salary of the engineer at $150 a month and reduced the salary of his assistant, Chester James, from $100 to $75 a month.

Further Cuts Voted
The salary reductions went all way down the line to include coal passers at the pumping plants whose pay for the next year will be 25 cents an hour, and firemen and others, which will be 35 cents an hour. This represents a reduction of 10 cents on the hour schedule.

That economy must be the watchword or a movement may be made at the next meeting of the legislature to amend the district, was declared by Attorney J. M. Kemble, who appeared before the board.

Claim Land Worthless
Kemble stated that some of the land owners in Louisa county have got rid of their properties by tax sales to escape from the burden of taxation caused by the maintenance of the district which does not benefit a large part of the land in the district.

Postmaster General
Sends Directions
To Postoffices

Because of the increasing number of pieces of mail which are incorrectly, insufficiently and illegibly addressed a notice has been received at the local postoffice from Postmaster General Walter F. Brown as a caution to mailers to exercise greater care in addressing mail.

During 1929 there were 200,000,000 pieces of such mail deposited in the postoffices of the country, of which about 23,000,000 pieces reached the dead letter office and in the letter mail was found more than $100,000 in cash.

In preparing any matter for mailing, the following directions should be observed:
Print or write legibly the complete name, post office, state, street and number. In lieu of street and number the address may be a post office box or a rural route. In any event write the most complete address available.

Avoid abbreviations which may be confusing or misleading, such as "Minn." or "Mass." "Va." often mistaken for "Pa." and many others.

The sender should write or print his name and address in the upper left corner.

If a complete address is not obtainable, the best address available should be used, with any descriptive words which will aid in delivery, such as "Merchant," "Clerk," "Mechanic," "Teacher," or in care of some person or concern.

If the address is a "transient," indicate that fact by the words "General Delivery" or "Transient." In short, affix an address which will enable postal clerks to make proper distribution and carriers to readily deliver the mail.

HATS are much in women's minds these days—and knowing what all women think of them. I decided to just satisfy that longing with two perfectly stunning models for different occasions! For those of you who want a hat that's really, truly tailored, and as smart as can be, I have sketched the little hat at the left. This is of black felt, very distinctly tilted over the right eye and trimmed with a hard and tailored bow of white doeskin incriminated with black kid! And then at the right I illustrate a hat, Eugenie-inspired, but of modern execution, that's just the thing for your dress-up gowns. This hat is gaily trimmed with a ribbon of white kid, and the Eugenie influence, but influence only! Hat of brown-red velvet trimmed with a matching ostrich feather. These

ARE the season's copies of Paris models shunned or sought by the elegant women of the day? By copies I mean those which strike buyers as so universally wearable, and are of such great appeal to the majority of women that they are tremendously salable too. The use of the term doesn't denote cheapness or flashiness or any derogatory characteristics—on the contrary, the clothes that come under this classification are often under the cream of the Paris collections, plus that so-necessary wearability! Naturally, a frock or coat of such universal appeal is going to be copied in cheap materials and carelessly thrown together, to be sold at a ridiculous, low price. And the point is, does a woman want to wear a frock or coat exactly like everybody's going to be worn by someone who has bought a cheap copy in some small shop? Most women, thinking of it this way, would voice an emphatic denial. BUT they lose sight of the fact that a dress copied exactly from one of theirs, in cheap material, isn't the same thing at all. Good materials and careful workmanship are the chief essentials of an expensive frock, and no matter how many cheap copies are made of it, the expensive frock is totally unaffected.

'N' it's a good thing that we may buy copies in expensive materials, for some of the season's most popular garments are among them: (Vionnet's cross-strap back evening gown, Lelong's three-quarter velvet wrap bordered with silver fox, Mainbocher's black crepe of reddish-brown velvet, with a tiny rolling brim, and an ostrich plume of the same color placed high on the crown. And this crown itself, you see, my dears, is cleverer, and a distinct departure from the earlier shallow ones!

S-O-O-O-O, when you start out to buy your hat-robe, do see that it has this distinctly different for different occasions tailored for worktime and frivolous for playtime.

evening frock with the black satin, left-sided sash, and the Yvonne coat of cloth and Persian lamb. It would be just too bad to give up any of these because we feared they'd be copied, now wouldn't it?

HATS are much in women's minds these days—and knowing what all women think of them. I decided to just satisfy that longing with two perfectly stunning models for different occasions! For those of you who want a hat that's really, truly tailored, and as smart as can be, I have sketched the little hat at the left. This is of black felt, very distinctly tilted over the right eye and trimmed with a hard and tailored bow of white doeskin incriminated with black kid! And then at the right I illustrate a hat, Eugenie-inspired, but of modern execution, that's just the thing for your dress-up gowns. This hat is gaily trimmed with a ribbon of white kid, and the Eugenie influence, but influence only! Hat of brown-red velvet trimmed with a matching ostrich feather. These

ARE the season's copies of Paris models shunned or sought by the elegant women of the day? By copies I mean those which strike buyers as so universally wearable, and are of such great appeal to the majority of women that they are tremendously salable too. The use of the term doesn't denote cheapness or flashiness or any derogatory characteristics—on the contrary, the clothes that come under this classification are often under the cream of the Paris collections, plus that so-necessary wearability! Naturally, a frock or coat of such universal appeal is going to be copied in cheap materials and carelessly thrown together, to be sold at a ridiculous, low price. And the point is, does a woman want to wear a frock or coat exactly like everybody's going to be worn by someone who has bought a cheap copy in some small shop? Most women, thinking of it this way, would voice an emphatic denial. BUT they lose sight of the fact that a dress copied exactly from one of theirs, in cheap material, isn't the same thing at all. Good materials and careful workmanship are the chief essentials of an expensive frock, and no matter how many cheap copies are made of it, the expensive frock is totally unaffected.

'N' it's a good thing that we may buy copies in expensive materials, for some of the season's most popular garments are among them: (Vionnet's cross-strap back evening gown, Lelong's three-quarter velvet wrap bordered with silver fox, Mainbocher's black crepe of reddish-brown velvet, with a tiny rolling brim, and an ostrich plume of the same color placed high on the crown. And this crown itself, you see, my dears, is cleverer, and a distinct departure from the earlier shallow ones!

S-O-O-O-O, when you start out to buy your hat-robe, do see that it has this distinctly different for different occasions tailored for worktime and frivolous for playtime.

As We See It

Hats Off to These Ministers

Forty-eight well known churchmen from all sections of the United States have signed a petition addressed to President Hoover and Congress declaring that in view of the attitude expressed by the Supreme Court of the United States in denying citizenship to Prof. Douglas C. Macintosh, professor of theology at Yale divinity school, and Miss Marie H. Bland, both Canadians, on the ground that they would not support any war that violated their consciences and religious convictions, these forty-eight American ministers do support the principles championed by Prof. Macintosh and Miss Bland.

The declaration names part of the signers as declaring that they will not perform any kind of combatant service during war, and the remaining ministers as declaring that they will not support any war waged by our government unless they are convinced that the war is right and just.

The men who signed this petition include some of the most prominent clergymen and editors of religious publications in the United States.

This declaration of religious conscience follows some months after a questionnaire circulated by THE WORLD TOMORROW brought back answers from 1,900 ministers that they would stand by their conscience and religious principles as taught by Christ in case of war. IN OTHER WORDS, THEY PLACED CONSCIENCE AND GOD ABOVE GOVERNMENT.

This attitude is truly heroic and praiseworthy. It is one of the first examples in nearly 2,000 years where Christian clergymen turned en masse to the doctrines of the Prince of Peace.

If they maintain this stand in spite of all the persecution and punishment that will be heaped upon them, they will become one of the greatest regenerative forces and one of the most invincible peace forces the world has ever seen. THE FIGHT TO PLACE CONSCIENCE ABOVE HUMAN GOVERNMENT IS THE NEXT GREAT FIGHT. IT WILL HAVE TO BE WON BEFORE WE CAN SAY THAT WE ARE WHOLLY FREE AND ENTIRELY CIVILIZED.

When conscience is supreme and inviolate; when governments can no longer compel men to kill each other, or do anything that conflicts with higher principles, then and only then will there be no war.

The people can do no braver or grander thing than to follow the lead of these ministers and offer themselves as sacrifices to the highest principles known to man. Only in this way will we get out of this horrible welter of crime and war which threatens the world with destruction.

ARE YOU A CHRISTIAN, OR ARE YOU NOT?

Hoover's Plan to End the Depression

At last, President Hoover has offered a plan to relieve the present depression.

The nub of the proposal seems to be to use a billion dollar government revolving fund to support and bolster up the failing banks, the weak railroads and other tottering industries. It was suggested that the emergency commission for handling the fund will also take over the frozen assets of banks that have failed and are in process of liquidation, real estate loans by banks and trust companies, defaulted bonds, and purchase deflated stock in certain industrial concerns in order to boost prices to a higher level.

In other words, President Hoover proposes to end the present depression by handing out government aid and assistance to the trusts and monopolies and to the financial and industrial magnates, in order to boost their stocks and give them more money to run their businesses a little while longer, instead of using this billion dollar revolving fund to create more work and raise the purchasing power of the people, so they can buy more goods.

Whatever Mr. Hoover's plan turns out to be in detail when all the details are revealed, we feel sure he has gone at the question exactly from the wrong end, as one would expect Hoover, the ingrained capitalist and millionaire and big business representative, would do.

The present depression is not caused by a lack of funds or capital by big business; IT IS CAUSED BY A LACK OF MARKET FOR THE PRODUCTS OF INDUSTRY. The sole problem faced by every business and industry in America right now IS LACK OF OUTLET FOR PRODUCTION. There isn't an industry in the country that wouldn't leap into sudden activity and prosperity if there was some one to buy all the products it could turn out.

No permanent or prolonged good can be done by merely loaning money to big business to tide it over the present depression. Such meager funds as the government can now muster wouldn't be a drop in the bucket. All that any business needs now is PURCHASERS OF ITS GOODS WITH MONEY IN THEIR POCKETS. There is plenty of capital in the country. Two enormous government issues — the first one amounting to $800,000,000 — were oversubscribed six times by capitalists eager to put their money in a safe place. Would they have invested these enormous sums at about 3 per cent interest, if there was a market for industrial products?

Bolstering up failing banks with a paltry billion dollars when banks with deposits running into hundreds of millions are failing, sounds like child's play. A billion dollars is only a little more than 1 per cent of the banking resources of the nation. It looks like extremely risky business to put government money in banks when hundreds of them are being robbed by gangsters from the outside and hundreds by embezzlers on the inside. Why doesn't Mr. Hoover propose the control of the banking system by the American people?

What is the sense in handing more capital to the big capitalists when the very thing they are suffering from is over-capitalization, over-equipment and over-production? Why not carry out the program of the progressives — use the resources of the nation to create work, raise the people's incomes and purchasing power and thus open up markets and outlets to industry?

Walter S. Gifford, millionaire head of Hoover's emergency commission, says that all we have to do to end the crisis is to spend more money for goods and give the factories and railroads and stores more to do. You are absolutely right, Brother Gifford; now show us where to get the money to spend, and stop the wage-cutting.

Our Platform for the People Is:

1. Less taxation.
2. Fewer State Commissions.
3. Universal school books.
4. Lower freight rates.
5. Return of river transportation.
6. A cleanup of some state institutions.
7. More efficiency in public offices.

The Evening Story

A GOOD JOB
By ETTA WEBB

At 7 o'clock Lin Wilson drove up to Marcia Laun's door in his good-as-new old car, simonized by his own hands after work hours. Lin had bought the car, which had only 2,800 miles against it, for a couple of hundreds, just so he and Marcia would have some place to do their courting. For Marcia's home was overrun with younger brothers and sisters, to say nothing of a boarder or two taken in to help pay the grocery bill.

Marcia came running out, looking sweet in a new hat which she had that day found at a bargain sale. The hat was blue and so were her eyes. Lin thought tenderly he had never seen them bluer.

"You're late," she said, "I don't see how I'm ever going to marry you at all. Dad's out of work and the bills keep right on piling up. I feel like I have outside the borders, to depend on now is my salary, and you know what that is."

"Is it honestly as bad as that?" Lin asked shakily. "It's worse. Dad must have her tonsils out right away."

"They sat in silence, then Marcia laughed. Better than to cry she thought. Lin patted her shoulder with his big brown hand. His dark eyes were misty with disappointment and yearning.

"I'll tell you what I'll do," Lin said at last. "You say you're dad out of work. Well, he can have my place at the plant and I'll go some place and pick me up another job. I'm young and strong, and as soon as I can I'll come back and get you. Will that suit you, honey?"

"I think, Lin," Marcia's head slipped to his shoulder, "that you are the best ever." She was crying now in earnest.

A few days later Lin Wilson went away in the old car to nose out a new job he had heard about. Dad Laun got sick and Dad had her tonsils removed, and the family began to bloom again. Roast beef again appeared on the table, and mother sang while she rolled out pie crust. Helen and the boys were next in line to Marcia, began to talk about business college next year. But Lin wrote that a job was not to be had for love or money out where he had some. He was moving on. That was in early fall and Marcia never heard from him after that.

She tried to forget Lin, but the world was black and cold. All she had left was work. If work could have killed a girl Marcia would soon have been dust and ashes. But work agreed with her. She was full of pep and determination to make something of herself.

A year later the manager of the small clipping bureau where she worked got sick and Dad had her asked to take charge of the concern. In a few weeks, under her skillful management, the business began to pick up, and Marcia, seeing that she could handle it nicely, was inspired to buy it on time. Three of her sisters could help her and earn wages themselves.

Marcia worked harder than ever. The business grew, she had to move into larger quarters employ more people. The Launs moved too, into a pleasant house where there was a nice lawn and a garden. Marcia drove her own little car. She had pretty clothes and she was happy.

Local papers carried her business advertisements, her stationery bore an attractive letter-head. The town knew her as an up-and-coming young business woman. She began to get orders for scrap books from famous headlines, a great transatlantic flier, a steel magnate, an explorer, the governor himself.

Marcia had a chance to marry. The banker's son asked her one night, but she shook her head.

"No," she said firmly. "But I will tell you plainly, as one honest fellow to another, I do not intend to marry ever. I haven't much use for men really."

Tom Henderson looked deep into her clear blue eyes.

"How did you get that way, Marcia?" he asked. "But Marcia kept silence. As far as heartache was concerned Lin Wilson might have left her only yesterday.

One morning she sat down before her desk to glance at her mail her secretary had ready for her. There was a letter from another person's secretary. And the person himself was Linton Hobart Wilson, mayor of a great western city, candidate for high political office. He requested a scrap book filled with newspaper clippings about himself.

For a moment the office whirled. Up to that moment Marcia had never found his name anywhere, but for the next few days she seemed to find it everywhere. Clippings came in from other bureaus she exchanged with. She made the book to order, carefully pasting the big pages with her own efficient hands. The money, the largest amount she had ever received for a single piece of work.

Marcia smiled ironically. Lin, mayor, politician, married man. He was smart enough for anything she had always thought. No doubt he had annexed a fortune by marrying an heiress. But, oh! The meaning of him to forget her when she loved him so. That night, Marcia cried herself to sleep.

Two days later she glanced up from her work to look straight into the dark eyes of Lin Wilson. The years had not changed him except to place touches of gray hair at his fine temples.

"Are you going to speak to me, Marcia?" he said. "She rose and they shook hands. 'I have come back, just as I promised,' Lin said. 'The only trouble is, I am late in getting here. But, Marcia, I have traveled a hard road. The first four years I was broke, down and almost out. I just could not come back, that way. When I got a break, I thought by that time you had forgotten me. Tom Henderson said if I would clear out he would win you. I never expected to have as much to offer you as Tom.'"

"Marcia began faintly. Lin lifted her hands to his lips. "Now that I have something to offer you, I want you, Marcia," he whispered.

Manhattan Days and Nights

By WALTER TRUMBULL

The camp, says one who has just returned to New York, was at the foot of Great and silent hills. In that clear Western air the sun was hot by day, and at night the bright stars were so near that it seemed almost as if one might have reached up to put candle-shades on them. Occasionally, against the jade colored sage of a valley's slope, the wool of sheep-forms white against some Indian boy and a dog watched to see that they did not stray. Here was no city tension, no rattle of traffic, no smoke or carbon monoxide gas, no newspapers heading man's inhumanity to man. No worries nor panics of human ants could depress the tall pines, which grouped to whisper of the Indian boy's great-grandfather, or the distant mountain peaks that had stood as a skyline for everlasting years. The nearest post office was fifty miles away. Once in ten days, perhaps some one went out for mail. Here was life close to the breast of nature, life in tents and hogans, or where one was likely to sleep rolled in a blanket beneath the sky. The only rift in the happiness of the camp was the nature of the camp. An old-timer, brought up in the open spaces, he was as sour as a pickle to a man with mumps, as morose as a cow deprived of its offspring. You see he had lost a considerable portion of his savings in Wall Street.

When it rained in the mountains and a foam-faced torrent came down an Arizona wash to flood Ganado, it took its toll of lives. But, more important to an old Indian, it took all but five of his flock of 196 sheep. One day he had been a rich man, the next he was cleaned out. In the East, he probably would have gone over the hill to the poorhouse, but they don't have such places behind the hills out there. One Navajo neighbor gave him two sheep, one gave him three, a man with a small herd gave only one, but another gave as many as four. It was not long before the old man had many sheep again—173, to be exact. A silly performance, but what can you expect of uncivilized people in paroxysms of greed? They don't even know enough to lock gold in safe deposit boxes and go home and climb under the bed.

A flood also hit Durango, that prosperous town in Southern Colorado, when an alligator, which had been in the Durango zoo, rode out of there on the moving vans. Report said that they reached the Animas River, which flows into the Colorado. Rumor traveled even faster than the alligators. Indians as far down as Ship Rock were chary of crossing the river for fear their ponies might lose a leg to the strange monster which grew daily in reputation. It may be that a visitor to the Grand Canyon will some day be converted to prohibition by seeing an alligator crawling up the Bright Angel trail. That might give even a Harvey ranger the jitters.

Courtney Ryler Cooper, the Kansas City boy who made good in the big tent, has written a new book entitled "Circus Days," which he has dedicated to John Ringling. Mr. Cooper now has a home somewhere in Colorado, but is seldom in it. When he is not in New York, as he has been recently, he is bustling about some other portion of the country gathering material for fact and fiction. His latest scheduled trip is a little 18,000-mile jaunt in that country described by Rudyard Kipling as "North of Fifty-three." Mr. Cooper will turn himself loose in Canada, where he will perhaps gaze into the kind face of a moose, and gather himself some material for railroad fiction.

When the great dirigible, Akron, went on its trial trip, the start came very close to being delayed. The designer, Karl Arnstein, couldn't find his cap. You might think that he could have worn a hat, or gone bare-headed and let his hair grow, but that shows all you know about it. Mr. Arnstein has a cap which he bought in Prague some twenty years ago. Since then he probably has designed some eighty or ninety airships, and on each trial trip he has worn that cap. It is a black and white affair, not perhaps so beautiful to the ordinary eye, but no trial trip would be official unless Mr. Arnstein wore it. In fact, he probably would not go on a trial trip unless he wore it. Fortunately he found it.

The farmer is his own worst enemy. That may sound queer, but it is mostly true. In issue of Sept. 27, in People's Pulpit, the article by Louis Loos of Hedrick, Iowa, we all have to agree, is true. The only plan for farmers is one organization. Every organization for farmers that now exists could remain intact, but all should unite in a higher federation that would benefit the mass of farmers of America. We do not need any more agents to teach the farmers high pressure farming, resulting in overproduction. All students who graduate from colleges must have jobs. All classes have powerful organizations, that his at the law-making bodies of the States, so they can and will have jobs.

Take the T. B. test law veterinary association plus serum manufacture backed by the department of Agriculture, through its various agents, combine with the Packers to put the political machine in action, and believe me, no loophole is overlooked where the owner and producer of cattle has the least bit of influence. Let us get together and say, HAD THE FARMERS ONE ORGANIZATION THEY WOULD side of the body as clean as possible throws this mucus out on the mucous membrane since it is really on the outside of the body. In bronchitis you will find a similar condition of the bronchial tubes. And there will be an inflammation of the membrane lining the tubes. This mucus is felt in the bronchial tubes due to the distention of the abdomen and the person will feel as if they were choking, and they really are. Cold and dampness make mucus thick and heavy, filling up the passages of the respiratory system and when this condition is allowed to remain it becomes chronic, the mucus in many cases becomes infected and thereby more poisonous. After years of such a condition, there is formed a tough, slimy, sticky coating over the surface of mucous membrane, not only of the respiratory system but it may spread over the lining of the nose, head, and ears, or may go downward to cover the walls of the stomach and intestines and this links up constipation with respiratory disorders.

It is due to a lack of solvent fruit juices and faulty colonic elimination that causes the backing up of this sticky waste, and the spreading of it out on the mucous membranes. The colon becomes coated, the liver, spleen, pancreas, and other organs become coated inside and out, the pores of the skin become clogged up with oily sticky waste, so there is no other place in or on the body for the elimination of it and the moist membranes become the dumping ground.

It will do no good to take coal-tar products and cough syrups of all kinds and expect any real relief. A patient with these conditions must stop eating sweets and starches and increase the solvent fruit juices. Plenty of salads and raw and cooked vegetables must be eaten to secure elimination after the mucus has been dissolved and dislodged from the mucous membrane. Some lean meat might be eaten but positively no fats or sweets. A dinner plate of raw, chopped salad with a little dressing must be eaten once a day.

Give It a Thought

By Joseph A. Sadony

It is only a tired man Who can enter the Kingdom of Heaven.

Our body is but a cup of pure water, (soul); Some deformed, large or small, strong or weak.

In which the soul exists. It may filter out slowly Or be held so tightly that the cup appears empty of all human emotions.

But it is there, to cleanse, to carve, to cut. To engrave your signature upon the heart of man.

Like the clouds of rain upon the face of the earth Without a cup to hold it.

Your cleansing is for humanity to clean the sight from visions and scenes.

The heart from selfish cruelty. The hand from lust and blood. The mind from cobwebs of laziness and ingratitude.

The ears that you may hear the better the cry of orphans and widows bereft.

The cup the Master filled for you. Thinking you worthy to carry it for its use.

What will you do with it? Return it as clear as you received it, untouched.

Or bring it back filthy, dirty, ill-used. As proof that you did make use of it.

And bring back evidence which, upon presenting it at the altar of Justice.

Will evaporate into mist. Leaving a rock of ages as your passport or mark of worthiness.

very adhesive and has been collecting for a long time, therefore those who wish to do some real good for themselves must have will-power enough to keep themselves well in hand for months until the system has had time to clean itself out thoroughly. Most of the ailments of man are due to a clogging of the openings and pores of the body by mucus.

If the mucous membranes of the body were exposed at the drying effects of the sun and air like the skin, we would not live as long as we do many times, because osmosis could not take place and the body would fill up faster internally; this would cause serious internal disorders much sooner.

Song for the Fleet
Oh, it's "Jack Tar," "Gob" and "Hereo"

When the country's in a fight, And it's "Uncle Sam's protectors"; When there's need of brawn and might;

Oh, it's "Rah for Yankee Doodle!" When the bombs fall all about, But when Sammie calls expenses, It's just "Throw that sailor out!"

Oh, it's "brave and splendid fight-er" When there's scrapping to be done, And it's "backbone of the nation"; When it's time to man the gun;

Oh, it's "bulldogs of the ocean" When the shells about him burst, But when they must cut the pay-roll, It is, "Sack the sailor first!"

It is "Hail the conquering hero" When the nation goes to war, And it's "Never shall he suffer" When the big twelve-pounders roar;

It is "He's the country's mainstay—" "Hail the gallant, gritty gob!" But when some one tightens the purse strings, It's just "Take that sailor's job!"

He's a very noble fellow And the government's his friend When there's trouble in the offing And there's coasting to defend; But when statesmen talk of budgets, No one seems to heed the sound.

To demand in tones quite vibrant, "Hey! there! Give those gobs the gate!"

BIG MUSKIES SET FOR OPENING GAME HERE TONIGHT

Cards and Athletics Preparing for 1932

Cardinals Farms Send Up Players Worth Quarter Million

Major league ball clubs which can win a hundred games in a year are pretty good teams and hardly need strengthening.

The Cardinals and Athletics, now in the midst of their second world championship duel, are mighty teams. They easily outclassed their fields and ordinarily the leaders of such teams would be content to stand pat and let the rest of the baseball world do the strengthening.

But the Cards and Athletics are not standing still. Apparently both organizations are intent on further strengthening their diamond leadership. While other clubs are buying up everything in sight and planning wholesale trades this coming winter—in order that there may not be two more runaway races next summer—the champions are likewise recruiting.

Card Rookies Valuable

Conservatively priced, the recruits who are advancing to the Cards from minor league farms are worth $250,000 of any manager's money. It is unlikely that Sam Breadon of St. Louis would sell the whole batch of youngsters at that price.

They include one of the best minor league pitchers seen in many years, Dizzy Dean of Houston, and a lad with plenty of minor league polish, also a valuable prospect, and ready for the big show if he is ever to make that grade.

Other pitchers include Ray Starr—who specialized in winning double headers for Rochester—Paul Dean, Dizzy's brother, and Beckman, the latter two of the Springfield club of the Western association.

Don't Need Pepper

Rochester offers another outfielder in Red Pepper, though when the Cards will use him is a problem.

Joel Hunt and Eddie Delker, advance from Columbus, and the recruits may also include Pat Crawford, first baseman. The Cards already have two of the best first basemen in the National league in Bottomley and Collins.

Then there is a young infielder from the Danville club, Lee Cunningham.

The Cardinals farms have produced everything this year but another crop of catchers. The Cards don't need catchers, fortunately, with Wilson and Mancuso at the top of their game.

Card Farms Producing

A few years ago many baseball men commented to the effect that with all their minor league possessions the Cardinals could not raise any pitchers having to trade or buy for their mound talent. But that day has passed. The farms are producing.

Bill Hallahan and Paul Derringer are recent products of the farms and the staff that will be tried out in the spring would gladden the heart of any manager.

The Cards have so much talent that it is quite possible there may be some trading with other big league clubs during the winter. If not then there will be such a surplus next year that the Rochester, Columbus and Houston clubs are going to have some major leaguers in their minor league lineups.

Mack Buying Too

While random waits for Connie Mack to dismantle his "perfect ball club" and scatter his stars about the major league field, the grand old man is buying up and recalling minor league stars.

His array of tryout talent isn't as brilliant as that of the Cards but he has a lot of it and some of the youngsters are going to add strength.

It appears that Oscar Roettger, bought from St. Paul, is to supplant Jimmy Foxx at first and permit Mack to send Jimmy over to third to relieve Jimmy Dicks.

If the veterans, Boley and Bishop, are not able to step at a fast clip next spring Mack has McNair and Williams. So he may have an entirely new infield.

To date Roettger is Mack's most important purchase of the year. But he's not through. He is likely to make further deals.

Wants More Pitchers

And Mack's list of recalls will give him a lot of material to experiment with next year. He wants another pitcher of two. Solie Carter and Merritt Cain are two young pitchers who have been in the NYP league all year getting ready for next spring's tryout with the Athletics. Mack is pleased with the progress they have made.

Frank Higgins, an infielder recalled from San Antonio; Ed Chisholm, a shortstop in the NYP; and Lou Pinney, an outfielder with York, are all good prospects.

Both the Cards and Athletics were well supplied with reserves during the 1931 season. Many of these men are good enough for regular berths. The fight for positions next spring will be keen in both champions' camps.

St. Paul Wallops Rochester, 9 to 3

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (INS)—The seventh game of the Little World series will be played here this afternoon, and if the Rochester Red Wings, international league winners, win, it will be all over.

The Red Wings' chances of taking the series yesterday hit a snag when George Davis, left fielder of the St. Paul American Association club, snapped out of his slump and connected for four hits to lead his team to an impressive 9 to 3 triumph.

"WE MUST PLOT, NOT MEDITATE," MACK TELLS A'S

Pepper Martin Almost Exclusive Topic on Special Train

ABOARD BASEBALL WRITERS SPECIAL, en route to St. Louis, this day was set apart for trial and meditation by all those involved in the World Series of 1931, but Connie Mack & Co., simply couldn't stop with this meditating stuff.

"Meditation," said Connie to his bedraggled Athletics as they boarded their own special last night, is OK for people like those Cardinals, but what we will have to do is to plot.

"Well, let's not worry too much," soothed his boys. "You know that George Earnshaw will be there on Friday—good old George."

"Yes, good old George," responded Connie, "but didn't I read somewhere in the box scores that this inufferable creature landed a few haymakers on good old George the first time they met, any socked him twice more on their second joint adventure?"

The Cards rolled the rails happy and jubilant. They won yesterday 5 to 1 and now lead the A's in games three to two.

"We're in a spot now where it doesn't seem as if we can be nosed out," commented Gabby Street.

"We have Grimes, who stopped the A's with two hits on Monday. Burleigh ought to deliver again. We'll also have Derringer to rush the facular play upon the records. Bill Hallahan who has stopped those blocks twice."

"Meanwhile," added Street, "the only fellow the A's have who has caused us trouble is Earnshaw. Yet we've beaten him once in two starts and it's 50-50 that we can bang him overboard the next time. After Earnshaw are Grove whom we've hammered for 23 safeties! Hoyt, who was batted out of the box, Walberg, Rommel and McHaffey, who have caused us no distress whatever."

Martin Leading Topic

The almost exclusive topic of conversation on this public conveyance is Johnny Martin, the most glamorous Series hero since the classic began.

Others, in the drifted years, have flashed brilliantly for one or two games or have placed some speculations on the Cards' chances. But Martin has been the mighty man in every game played so far and the more difficult becomes his role, the more amazingly does he perform.

Since he rattled three safeties off Grove in the opener and since he pilfered the first sack from the arm of Mickey Cochrane, he has been "singed" by the Athletics team. Cochrane and the pitcher and the infielders have tried every conceivable trick to stop him from hitting and halting his way during on the paths. Failure has been their only portion.

He has smacked every starting hurler and the reserve squads as well as connected with everything that a baseball can throw.

Eclipses Alger Heroes

He has dominated the Cardinal attack and demoralized the superb machine that Connie Mack put together.

And the strangest feature of it all, in the career of Martin, is hitting had to "steal" his way into the big league. The Cards, who picked him up in 1924 thought so little of him that when they ordered him to report at their 1925 training camp, somebody forgot to send him a ticket or money.

Martin was suffering from a bit of depression at the time and so, he got to camp, he had to ride freight or the brake beams of passenger trains—without permission of the railroads. His arriving wardrobe consisted of the clothes he wore when he was a boy.

Thus the saga of Johnny Martin not merely rivals, but it eclipses any story ever penned by Horatio Alger.

ATHLETICS STILL CONFIDENT THEY WILL COP SERIES

Cochrane Claims All They Have to Do Is Stop Martin

ABOARD A'S Special Enroute to St. Louis—If we're going to win our third consecutive world series crown for Connie Mack we'd better do something—and very quickly—about this Pepper Martin. He's making a one man show on this annual baseball classic and all to the Athletics' disadvantage.

Three times in this series we thought we had Martin stopped. He wasn't. Each time after we managed to get him out he'd come back with just as much power and strength as on the opening day when first he broke into the spotlight.

Martin has put us in the hole once more. Yesterday he was responsible for four of the Cardinals five runs. He beat us though credit must also be showered upon Bill Hallahan for his splendid pitching.

Martin Hasn't Weakness

Waite Hoyt, a cool veteran with an understanding of batting stance, tried Martin on inside curves and also fast ones outside. There also was a change of pace inserted in an effort to get rid of this sensational youngster. He hasn't a weakness. You may think you've discovered one, only to have him crack the same pitch for a safety the next time it's used.

He came through with a homer in the sixth with Frisch on to clinch the old game. This hit was off a Hoyt inside curve.

Hallahan had great control. He had great judgment and showed that he's improving all the time. Last year he relied largely on his fire ball. No he mixes his physical assets with baseball sense.

Hoyt didn't pitch a poor game for the A's. He would have gone on but for Martin's homer. In fact our pitching was good. When a chap gets hitting as Martin is no pitcher can hope to stop him. He's what we call "hot." Not until his streak runs its own course will be get him out. Let's hope it's ended with yesterday's wonderful hitting.

Macks Still Confident

We haven't an ally to offer. The Cardinals have played great ball. They've had air-tight pitching.

'RBI' Scores Play Big Part In Forecast On World Series

By LES CONKLIN
INS Sports Writer

NEW YORK—In comparing the batting averages of the rival players in the world series, it is important to note how many runs a man has batted in during the course of a regular season.

The fellow who is high up in the "RBI" list, the lad who hits when a hit means a run and not when the sacks are empty, is your dangerous player. A batter who can deliver a hit in a pinch, even though his season's average is below .275, may prove to be more reliable than boasting an average over .300.

For instance there is Phil Todd, substitute first basemen of the Athletics, who may see action in the post-season classic due to the injury suffered by Jimmy Foxx and other team mates. It may be that Foxx will be shifted to third base and Todd set to first.

Although Todd's batting average is only around .230, he is a dangerous batter in a pinch. Phil had made a total of only 37 hits in the latest averages, but those 37 hits had accounted for 35 runs. That's making your hits count.

In the 1930 world series Jimmy Dykes, third baseman of the Athletics, batted in the most runs, five, even though he made only four hits during the entire series. Jimmy's composite batting average for the sixth game was only .222, yet he saw more tallies across the plate than Simmons and Foxx, whose series batting averages were .364 and .333, respectively.

The following table shows how timely hitting by Pepper Martin and splendid fielding to throttle any Mack uprising. But we're not out of this series yet. The Cards are one up and two to go. We can even up the series with a victory in Sportsman's park tomorrow. Then we'll give all we have in the seventh.

We haven't been hitting as a team. Simmons did some deadly work yesterday but others—including myself—fell down in the pinch. With Earnshaw and Grove available to oppose Grimes and Derringer we are still confident of success.

LOCAL HARRIERS TO OPEN SEASON AT WASHINGTON

Cochran Will Take Cross Country Men On Friday Trip

Coach Leonard E. Hunn and ten Little Musky cross country runners will leave at 11:30 Friday morning for Washington where they will match strides with those of the Washington team Friday afternoon in the first harrier meet of the season for both teams.

Those making the trip for the locals will be John Wilson, captain, Warren King, Richard Higerson, Jean Gains, LaVerne Nicholas, Hubert Tipton, Gerald Wyman, Henry Lange, Bernard Wheeler and Morris Campbell.

It is still questionable whether or not Wilson will be eligible to run against the Washington team. Wilson entered school this week for the first time and should be caught up with his studies, will be eligible to compete.

Washington has four lettermen back this year and boasts one of the strongest teams in the state. The four are Minden, Helwick, Heseline and Fredericks. Minden beat Wilson in the state meet last year and is reported to be even better this season. All four of these runners placed ahead of Muscatine's fifth man in the state meet.

Coach Hunn announced that he is hoping for a victory but is rather in doubt whether his freshmen and sophomore runners can come through with a win.

Burlington Team Will Battle Local Eleven

TWO B TEAMS TO PLAY FRIDAY ON LOCAL GRIDIRON

McIlrath's Squad to Battle Before All School Students

Although the Little Muskies will not be home this week-end to display their wares, a game which promises to bring forth some exciting football will be played Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Jefferson field between two high school B squad teams.

Coach Howard McIlrath, following a month of careful coaching, has rounded some 30 freshmen and sophomore gridiron prospects into a fighting bunch of cohorts and in an attempt to make the town "football minded," as he called it, or to raise the spirit of football here, something which has been lacking the past several seasons, he will send two evenly matched teams on to the field to battle before some 2,500 grade and high school students.

Coach McIlrath divided his squad into two teams Wednesday afternoon and named the one Cardinals and the other Athletics. Both teams have their own plays and an exciting game is expected.

Every One Invited

Every person in Muscatine is invited to attend the game without charge, kicking and passing are the idea of the game is to put the ambition to play football into the minds of every grade school boy so that when he gets to high school he is eligible for organized play, he will know something about the game.

William Houk, Jr., has been named captain of the Cardinals while Clifton Reeves will lead the Athletics. Line captains were also selected on both teams with Harold Laughlin named as the captain of the Athletic forward wall and Richard Wilson, captain of the other line.

The two captains chose their teams and then went through signal practice Wednesday. More signal practice will be on the schedule for both teams today with blocking, kicking and passing also being stressed considerably.

Just who will officiate for the game has not been decided as yet, but Coach McIlrath announced he will try to secure three former high school football stars.

Following the game Friday, the local B team, on Nov. 6, they will close their season against the West Liberty second team. All these games will be played away from home.

Coach McIlrath will get his proteges down to hard work in preparation for their game with the St. Ambrose Academy team of Davenport on Oct. 17. Muskies Hope to Take Up Where They Left Off Last Year

Two of the strongest semi-pro football teams in this section of the state will swing into action tonight under the floodlights at Jefferson field when the Big Muskies and the Burlington Independents clash in the first game of the season for both teams.

The local team, strengthened by several college stars, will take the field tonight primed to lay open the lid with a victory and continue the winning streak of last year's team, which hung up a record of 12 wins out of 14 games played.

Just who will start the scales for the locals is undecided but it is evident that a formidable aggregation, consisting of seven veterans of last year's team will take the field.

Burlington Team Strong

The Burlington squad, backed by two weeks of intensive drilling, is reported to be ready and according to work received from that camp, will be ready to shoot the works against the locals. The visitors also have several veterans from last year back in uniform including Barney Phillips, one of the best defensive ends ever witnessed here. Barney is also known for his tricky runs ability to pull in forward passes.

At the tackles for Burlington will be Moss and Erickson. Moss starred on the Burlington high school and junior college. Erickson, while Frickson, who tips the scales at 225 pounds, is a four year letterman in football from the Olds-high school. Two newcomers will be seen at the guard posts. They are Virgil Criner, who played for four years at the semi-pro game and Davis, 6 foot 4 inch slant who has played football in Ohio before going to Burlington.

A fast and classy backfield will be seen in operation against the locals. It consists of Cecil Rideout, former Burlington high school colored flash, "Butch" Koenig, another former Grayhound, Hubert Johnson, who played with the high school team for four seasons and then as a member of the Independent team at Pulver.

The starting lineup for the visitors follows: Wiesel, left end; Moss, left tackle; Criner, left guard; Darrickson, center; Davis, right guard; Erickson, right tackle; Phillips, right end; Johnson, quarterback; Rideout, left half; Koenig, right half; Pulver or Fleming, full back.

The Big Musky attack will be led by the two Fluke brothers and Rodney Manley in the backfield and Everett Lang, "Big Camp," "Club" Bain, Harry Jarrard and the two Coffin brothers in the line. Several other former high school and college stars who are on the club roster, also expected to get into the game.

The game is slated to get under way at 8 o'clock with Leonard Hunn, Howard, McIlrath and Jim Figg acting as officials.

Jackie Fields to Meet Tut Tonight

DETROIT (INS)—Jackie Fields, once the playboy of the welterweights, tonight will get down to the serious business of attempting to stage a pugilistic comeback at the expense of King Tut, a boxer of recognized ability. The 10-round bout is expected to decide the man who will be the leading challenger for the crown held by Young Jack Thompson.

Coach McIlrath will get his proteges down to hard work in preparation for their game with the St. Ambrose Academy team of Davenport on Oct. 17. ILLINOIS MINE WORKERS ENTER THIRD SESSION

Most of Time Taken Up With Reading Of Reports

VANCOUVER, B. C.—(INS)—After some lively preliminary skirmishes the American Federation of Labor convention was to bring its big guns into action today, for debate on the floor and consideration of innumerable resolutions was to get under way.

When the resolutions are adopted they will constitute the program of the American union man for the coming year.

"If you want to see democracy in action," said William Green, president of the organization, "deciding for itself its most momentous program you will see it on the floor of the convention beginning today."

Among the issues the delegates were to consider are several plans to modify or to abolish altogether the prohibition laws—varying from the legalizing of 2.75 per cent beer to the repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Discuss Liquor Law

Conservative officials of the federation are advocating the least drastic program as pertaining to the liquor laws—a move to legalize the manufacture of beer of weak alcoholic content.

Other high officials, however, are prepared to tell the delegates that the 2.75 per cent program does not go far enough—that repeal of the eighteenth amendment is the thing to be desired and to be championed by labor.

Those who would make a more drastic assault on the liquor laws say, "If we are going to have beer, let it be real beer." They pointed out that an inferior beer might not be consumed in sufficient quantities to effect the expected employment of thousands of persons in its manufacture and distribution.

Delegates appear to be equally divided on the matter of the five-day week. The division of opinion varies from the plan of the adoption of an "emancipation proclamation" which advocates the immediate start of the five-day week and the six-hour day, to the plan of discussing how to proceed to bring the short work week and day about.

Among other questions to be considered at the 51st convention of the federation are foreign relations, armament, education, relief of the unemployed and numerous others affecting labor.

Delegates today were discussing remarks made by President Green at a luncheon given him by R. J. Cronie, Vancouver newspaper publisher.

Green declared that America and Canada could capture the markets of Russia and China and thus create an outlet for North American products.

"The two countries should work together toward this end," Green said, "and tariff barriers between Canada and the United States should be lowered to a point consistent with reason."

Green also complimented Canada in having found what he described "as a real solution to the difficult social problem of prohibition."

Whether or not President Green would come out for a cancellation of war debts was a matter of conjecture among delegates. He has said Canadians that he was certain the one-year moratorium granted Germany by President Hoover "would have to be extended."

"It would seem to me," he stated, "that revision would follow, because it doesn't pay to break the backs of whole peoples in a spirit of revenge. If we have been taught anything by the war it is that nobody wins wars—all lose."

CATCH 49 SHARKS AT ONCE WITH ONE LINE

KEKAHA, Kauai, T. H.—(INS)—What is believed to be the record shark catch of all time for the territory of Hawaii was made here by Henry Thielemann, who landed 49 tiger sharks simultaneously with one line.

Using a steel airplane cable equipped with hau floats tied eight feet apart and a specially made hook of 5-8 inch steel a foot long and eight inches across, Thielemann made his cast off the Mana coast, near the world famous Barking Sands.

A shark was seen to snap at the bait and for over an hour he and ten other men fought to bring the monster ashore. Once on the beach, the fisherman cut open the mother shark and found 48 baby tiger sharks, each two feet in length. The mother shark proved to be 13 feet long and experts estimated her weight at around 1,500 pounds.

LABOR LEADERS BRING BIG GUNS ON PROHIBITION

Much Action Promised
On Floor of Meet
By Green

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—(INS)—The third session of the state convention of district 12 of the Illinois miners was entered today rather quietly. Most of the time during the past two days has been taken up with reading of reports, such as that of the credentials committee on the seating of delegates, that of President John H. Walker, and another by Walter Nesbit, secretary of the state union.

Yesterday afternoon several delegates whom the credentials committee had reported as being contested, were seated. Among them were five from Ziegler—George Kennedy, John Moulin, George
Hagen, Charles Rudolph and Charles Bartley.

Following bitter debate which for a time threatened to bring discord into the meeting, the question of seating contested delegates from Danville and Peoria was left to decision of the credentials committee.
A charge had been made that these delegates locals had failed to keep in good standing with the state organization.

MORNING SUN

MORNING SUN, Ia.—(Special)— church meeting and luncheon was held Tuesday evening in the Sharon Reformed Presbyterian church readings. The local Union church will be hostess to the next meeting. Special guests were, Dr. and ner Tuesday, Mrs. Ella Waddell,

Sands of the extension department gave the lesson on "Household Methods." Mrs. Work Worthington had on display an old brass flower basket, which she had redecorated, and which had been the property of her grandmother, some thirty five years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Brown left
Tuesday morning for Spokhish, Wash., to spend the winter with their daughter and husband, Dr. and Mrs. Verne Harris of that place.

Mrs. Harvey Kimble was hostess to the members of the home department of the Bible school of the Reformed Presbyterian church at her home Tuesday afternoon. There were 18 present. Mrs. J. C. Green is looked down, somewhat admiringly, at the reddened knuckles that had brought about Rayne's downfall.

"He saw—money for himself?" she asked.

"Say, but you're smart," said Jimmy.

"Then he'll tell—"

"Don't you believe it," said Jimmy.

"Why, he'll be afraid of his own shadow for years to come. He'd pass up a million rather than take another trimming like I gave him."

"A million? And you and he were to divide?"

"What you mean?" cried Jimmy angrily.

"Say, what sort of man do you think I am?"

"The nicest in the world," she said dismally. "And you fought him because he—suggested that you make capital out of this?"

"Well, sure," said Jimmy grudgingly. "But let's forget him. How you feeling?"

"All right," she answered.

"Remember everything?" he asked.

She shook her head. "Not everything. I remember going to the theater, and I remember talking with you on the stairs, and everything since. But in between—"

"Well, there couldn't have been much in between," said Jimmy.

"Not over an hour at the outside. Say, you folks must be out of their minds. You'd better telephone—"

She shook her head.

"Beautiful Taste"

"Maybe you're right," said Jimmy.

"You'd have to explain, and some one might be listening in. And anyway, you can get home almost as soon as you could get your folks on the phone."

He tore feverishly at the string about the two boxes that Auntie Giuseppe had packed for him.

"Say," he said, "you'll get a laugh out of these things. Imagine me picking out clothes for a Park avenue debbytante. Course, Auntie Giuseppe—she's the lady I got these things from—has the right idea when it comes to Broadway, but I bet you'll think these things are terrible."

He lifted a frock from the box and displayed it to her.

"I'll bet I don't," she smiled.

"Not if they're all as nice as this dress. Why, I think you have beautiful taste."

"On the level? You're not kidding me?" He flushed with pride.

"You know, there isn't any reason I'd have good taste. Brought up like I was—not that my folks weren't the grandest people that ever lived—but a country town—"

"You know—not much dough—I mean, how can people that haven't seen good things know when they do see them? Honest, are these rags pretty terrible?"

He displayed a blue coat suit.

"You see, my new act has got to have class," he went on, "and maybe the girl I'll have to use won't really know what's the real thing, and if I thought I could sort of rely on my judgment—"

She did the kindest thing in the world.

"I think I'd let her use her taste," she said.

His face clouded for a moment, then lightened again.

"Listen, you're swell," he said. "As long as it was a case of not hurting my feelings, you let on that these clothes were great. But when it began to look like my pocketbook and my career would be hurt you come right out with the honest dope. Say, I could kiss you," he said.

"Again?" she smiled.

From Adam's apple to the part in his red hair he blushed. His embarrassment was a physical hurt to him.

"Aw, say—honest—I didn't mean—"

"You didn't mean to? Is that flattering?"

"I mean—I didn't think you'd know—"

"There's rouge on your mouth, Jimmy," she accused.

He rubbed the back of his hand across his lips.

"You're swell!"

"But, say, you didn't have any vanity case?"

"And I found your make-up box, and now—"

"God, I shouldn't have done it," he almost moaned.

"Why, Jimmy?" Her hand touched his. "If—if I were angry, I'd not have mentioned it."

"Then you're not?" For a moment his eyes lighted with an incredible thought. Then he dismissed it. "Gee, you're swell," he sighed.

"You wanted me to know you knew."

so I wouldn't feel badly about having done it. And you don't mind, because—"

"Because you're swell, too, Jimmy," she said.

He sat down opposite her.

"I'm not the kind to kiss girls when they're faint," he said.

"I'm sure of that," she said gently.

"And you aren't the kind to flirt with a guy, and remind him that he kissed her."

"Oh, I'd never be sure of that—not with any girl," she laughed.

"I can be sure enough when it's a girl like you and a man like me," he said.

"No, sir. It's only because you're great. I'm not a fool. If I was, I'd be telling myself that you didn't mind being kissed, that maybe a ham hooper could get somewhere with Julie Treherne. And I'd be doing a bit more of the dream I had last night."

"What was that?" she asked.

"Oh, I got to figuring that maybe this memory trouble of yours would last, and having no place to go, maybe you'd team up with me in vaudeville—you know, I'm nuts about you, don't you? Sure you do. A girl like you, that's probably knocked them all dead all over the world, you'd know what a poor ham like me would fall pretty sudden. Especially when you know that I kissed you. Well, I got no right to talk like this to you. But I'm doing it just the same, right or no right. Because you're going in a couple of minutes, going back to your home, going right out of my life. And that's the worst. How else could it be? Me, Jimmy Farrell, what hasn't even made the big time yet, and Julie Treherne, a swell from Park avenue."

"You see, what I'm trying to get at is this: All my life I'm going to say to myself that I love a girl that's over my head. And I'll say to myself—and this is what's going to save my life, Julie—I'm going to say to myself that she knows I love her, and knows I kissed her, and she isn't laughing at me."

"Laughing at you, Jimmy? And what about myself? All my life I'm going to remember that Jimmy Farrell took me into his home in the middle of the night, that he treated me kindly, gently, generously."

"And kissed you when you were in a faint," said Jimmy.

"And kissed me," she said evenly.

"And fought for me, Jimmy Farrell, and in every way proved himself to be the greatest gentleman I've ever known."

"Gee," he said. "And then again, 'Gee.' He sighed. 'Julie, you were kidding when you said the dresses were pretty, and it was darned nice of you to kiss me. But about this, about me being—well, what you just said—Julie, you're not kidding me?'"

"Jimmy, I'm not kidding you," she said.

False Claims of Preventive Medicine Now Stand Exposed

The President of the New York State Medical Society in a published statement, upon assuming office, said: "A good many problems confront the practice of medicine nowadays other than its science. The problems of medical service are interwoven with public relationships. Attention must be given to coordinating the activities of medical science with public welfare. Solutions must be found for these problems."

Of recent years the tendency has been more and more for the medical profession to use its vast organization in the interests of commercialism. The large biological manufacturers with millions of dollars invested for the manufacture of serums and vaccines, are, of course, doing all that is possible to sell their products. Health boards play an important part in the scheme of things and medication is forced upon the public regardless of individual preferences or whether or not the people believe in Allopathic medicine, the system of healing which is the most intolerant of all schools.

While Allopathic medicine has only about one-third of the people of this country as its followers, still this minority group controls practically all boards of health, and its agents control all examining boards. An enormous monopoly of the healing art has been created, backed by commercialism. And as is the tendency with any monopoly, the medical trust is becoming oppressive and intolerant as it has gained in power. State and federal laws have been enacted until there is no longer medical freedom.

This oppression is much worse in some States than in others. In some States have repealed laws which forced medication on the people. For instance, North Dakota and Arizona have repealed the compulsory vaccination laws that did untold harm while in effect. But in spite of the history of these unfair laws, compulsory vaccination is contemplated by the Legislatures of other States and no doubt such measures will be enacted if organized medicine is permitted to continue unhampered.

In speaking of Medical Control, Clarence Darrow said: "I have been interested for many years in leaving man free to do as he pleases so long as he does not directly interfere with someone else. I believe in liberty, or did when we had it. I was born into this world without being consulted and I presume there was a doctor present. I did not hire him. As I had no chance to say anything about how I was born or who was present, I think I should be allowed to die without the assistance of a doctor. If I wish, I cannot avoid the undertaker, but I should be able to avoid the doctor."

"Now I would have no quarrel with the medical profession if they would leave me alone. I am willing that they should advertise their wares and their business, but I object to being forced to patronize them. I know that doctors like everyone else take themselves very seriously. I know that the efforts of the medical profession in the U. S. to control the treatment of human ailments is not due to its love of humanity. It is due to its love of its job—which job it professes to do."

TWO WILD GEESSE 117 YEARS OLD, SAYS PROOF

WARREN, O.—(INS)—Two wild Canadian geese, each at least 117 years old, are leading a quiet domestic life on the farm of James S. Morrow near here. Their longevity has proved to be one of the most mysterious pranks of nature.

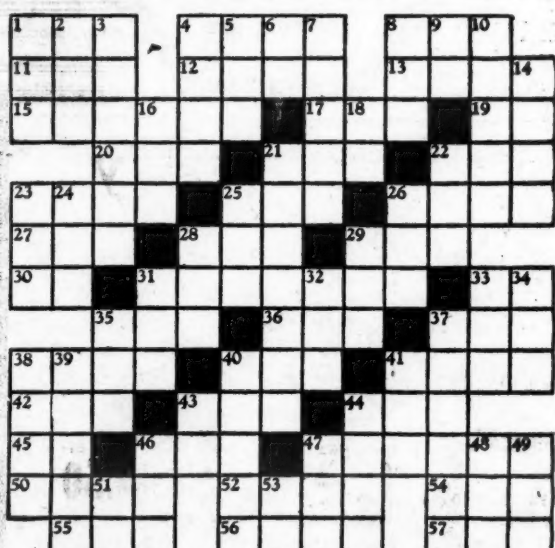

Written documentary evidence handed down through four generations of the Morrow family is exhibited as proof that the birds were captured in October, 1814 at Barbours millrace on Whetstone Creek in Marion county, Ohio.

Polly, one of the birds, laid seven eggs last year, despite the biological mystery surrounding her existence. Polly has been laying eggs annually for 116 years according to the Morrow. Molly the other bird, lays eggs intermittently, frequently skipping several seasons.

Morrow estimates the two birds have laid more than 2,000 eggs during their lifetime. None of the eggs are fertile.

Plumage of both birds is smooth and glossy, giving every indication of perfect health and vitality. One is about five pounds lighter than the average Canadian wild goose but the other is just average size.

FINANCE GROUP TO BRING BACK PROSPERITY

Will Do What Federal Reserve Banks Can
Not Accomplish

another thing the president would have the reserve banks authorized to rediscount mortgage bonds, a move that would release huge sums in frozen mortgage credits.

Restrictions in the federal reserve act limit the lending power of the reserve banks virtually to commercial and agricultural paper based on actual transactions. Eligible paper of this character is scarce.

George L. Harrison, governor of the New York Federal Reserve bank, who brought this report to the president at the White House today, just before Mr. Hoover left to make a speech at the Pan-American union, said the bankers' corporation would be national character, rather than sectional.

The huge corporation will be controlled by a board of twelve directors, one being appointed from each of the twelve federal reserve districts, Harrison explained.

He held the president rapid progress has been made among the nation's leading financiers since he made the proposal Tuesday night.

In outlining his plan Mr. Hoover said the purpose of the corporation would be the "rediscount of banking assets not now eligible for rediscount at the federal reserve banks in order to repeat the banks, being sound, that they may attain liquidity in case of necessity, and thereby enable them to continue their business without the restriction of credits or the sacrifice of their assets."

HOOVER BLAMES NATION'S BANKS FOR DEPRESSION

President Raps Lending of Money to Foreign Nations

this topic was on the program for discussion.

Learn Lesson By Failure
"We recognize that the prosperity of each and every nation contributes to the prosperity of all," the president said. "It is important that at conferences such as this the experience of each and every nation should be placed at the disposal of all in order that we may profit by our successes as well as learn the lessons of our failures."

"There is one lesson from this depression to which I wish to refer, and I can present it no more forcibly than by repeating a statement which I made to this conference just four years ago, when we were in the heyday of foreign loans. I stated, in respect to such loans that they are helpful in world development, provided always one essential principle dominates the character of these transactions. That is, that no nation as a government should borrow or no government lend to nations should discourage their citizens from borrowing or lending unless this money is to be devoted to productive enterprises."

"Out of the wealth and the higher standards of living created from enterprise itself just come the ability to repay the capital to the borrowing country. Any other course of action creates obligations impossible of repayment except by a direct subtraction from the standards of living of the borrowing country and the impoverishment of its people."

In fact, if this principle could be adopted between nations of the world—that is, if nations would do away with the lending of money for the balancing of budgets for purposes of military equipment for war purposes, or even that type of public works which does not bring some direct or indirect productive return—a great number of blessings would follow to the entire world."

Would Prevent War
The president stated that he could see no greater step taken in the prevention of war itself than this practice, and said the "financial transactions between nations must be built upon the primary foundation that money transferred is for reproductive purposes."

Tells of Arrest
"The only ground for my arrest," he said with quiet bitterness, "was that I had a copy of the 'Daily Worker' in my possession."

Space limits prohibit detailed discussions here on the welter of charges and countercharges of lawlessness and intimidation made by both miners and mine owners in Harlan county, which produces 23 per cent of Kentucky's coal and employs 18 per cent of the state's miners.

The uncontroverted facts are that since an attempt was begun, first by the United Mine Workers of America and later by the "Red" National Miners Union and the J. W. W.—to organize the miners of the region, savage civil war has been waged.

Since last May this struggle has resulted in a dozen deaths. There have been more than 100 arrests, many of them on charges of criminal syndicalism. Forty-four indictments for murder have been found. A miners' soup kitchen has been dynamited. Nine tipple have been burned, commissaries looted.

Two reporters seeking to learn the truth of the situation have been shot in the leg. Known miners' sympathizers have been beaten up.

There have been wholesale violations and dismissals of strikers. Armed bands have roamed the hills striking terror into the hearts of the county's inhabitants.

Tales of Injustice
The tales of injustice related by the miners, if eventually proven true, indicate that conditions in Harlan are as bad as they were in any baronial fief in medieval England.

The two county officials whom the miners unanimously accuse of being overly friendly to the operators are Judge J. D. C. Jones and Sheriff J. H. Blair.

"The miner will always grunt, no matter what he gets," Judge Jones said, "it's his nature. As far as these trouble makers here are concerned, both they and I can't endure here. There's not room for both of us in this field. I will use all the powers at my command, the powers of my court and of the law, to stamp them out."

Judge Jones' father-in-law is Judge Hall, whose family is heavily interested in the Three Points Coal field, one of the largest when Harlan's civil war was at full flood.

TWO SUITS FOR $5,000 DROPPED

Injury Cases Against
J. J. Fuller and Earl
Bidwell Dismissed

The damage suits of Betty Conn and Jennie Foster of Davenport against J. J. Fuller and Earl Bidwell of Muscatine in which the amount of $5,000 was asked for personal injuries, sustained in being hit by an automobile driven by the defendants, were settled and dismissed by Attorneys Smith and Swift of Davenport, today.

The actions were based on an accident that occurred at Second and Perry streets in Davenport on Sept. 30, 1930, when the two plaintiffs claimed they were struck by a car in which the defendants were riding. Negligence on the part of the defendants was alleged. Both plaintiffs claimed to have been seriously injured.

IOWA SEEKING BALL CARRIER

Meltzer of Muscatine
Among 34 Players
On Texas Trip

IOWA CITY, Ia.—(INS).—Shifting scenes of the University of Iowa football picture found the Hawkeye gridirers in Kansas City today, still attempting to find a ball carrier to replace Randall Hickman.

Hickman showed up on crutches yesterday and it was announced definitely that he would not play against Texas A. & M. at Dallas Saturday. He sprained his ankle in scrimmage.

In an effort to solve the problem Coach Burton A. Ingwersen began the task of converting Joe Laws from a quarterback to a halfback, and gave him first choice as Hickman's successor in scrimmage yesterday. Laws failed to use his head against Pittsburgh, but the Iowa mentor still has faith in his ball totting potentialities. Moffitt and Masden were also tried at halfback.

A squad of 34 players entrained here just after midnight this morning, and will continue to Dallas, Texas, tonight after their stay in Kansas City. Players making the trip are:

Ends—Fisher, Merten, Trickey, Swancy, Steery and Loufek. Tackles—Rogers, Dee, Foster, Dellavedova, Baker and Samuelson. Guards—Thompson, Hantelmann, Meltzer, Stutsman and Akin. Centers—Dolly, Bryant, Case and Moore.

Quarterbacks—Graham, Pickering, Thurlie, and Willer. Halfbacks—Kris, Hickman, Greedy, Masden, Laws and Moffitt. Fullbacks—Sansen, Carver and Schmidt.

IRISH FAVORED OVER WILDCATS

Rockne's Spirit Will Carry on Saturday
At Chicago

BY WEST PETERSON
(INS Staff Correspondent)
CHICAGO.—The indomitable spirit of Knute Rockne will carry on at Soldier field here Saturday afternoon.

There will be a memorial flag being carried, and Rockne's name will be on the chalk-lined field of battle. But more than that, "Rock's memory" will be in the hearts of the Irish warriors who will represent the Northwestern Wildcats against the New Record Probable.

If Notre Dame is triumphant again, a new record will be established at the Catholic school internationally known for football. Ten years ago the Irish scored 20 straight victories. Last Saturday, in swamping Indiana at Bloomington, they equaled this number.

"Hunk" Anderson was one of the players who helped establish that record a decade ago. On Saturday, as head coach, he hopes to shatter the old mark.

Wildcats Handicapped
The odds are distinctly in favor of Notre Dame, particularly since Red Russell, crack ground-gainer for the Purple, will be out of the game because of injuries received against Nebraska.

Coach Dick Hanley probably will fill Russell's post with Oliver Olson, a giant sophomore. His backfield will number only one veteran. Renner, at right half.

Notre Dame, on the other hand, is likely to be supported by seven men who played last year under Rockne—Cronin, Culver, Hoffman, Leahy, McNamara, Schwartz, and Yarr.

DIMES
Ten cent admissions in a proposed baseball league for 1932 is the latest news. Flint, Bay City, Saginaw, Port Huron and Lansing, in Michigan and Sarnia, Windsor, London, Kitchener, Brantford and Hamilton in Ontario, are the cities proposed. They were members of the old Michigan-Ontario.

TRADITION
The Texas Aggies must make good this year or spoil an old order. In 17 years of the Southwest Conference no senior class has ever graduated without seeing a conference champ and there has been none since 1927.

GRIDIRON BRIEFS

EVANSTON, Ill.—(INS).—Oliver Olson, sophomore giant, probably will play the fullback position. Northwestern's eleven left vacant when Red Russell was injured. Olson is regarded as one of the best punters on the squad.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(INS).—The Notre Dame gridiron who battle Northwestern Saturday at Soldier Field, Chicago, today were slated to receive more drill on defense. Coach Hearnly Anderson said he was dissatisfied with the variety's showing yesterday against reserves using Wildcat formations.

CHICAGO.—(INS).—Members of the Chicago football squad, who play Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday, tonight were to be primed for victory at a mass meeting held in connection with the dedication of the new field house. Coach A. A. Stagg awaited results of the examination taken by Pat Page, Jr., to determine his eligibility. If he "gets by" Page probably will start at halfback.

MADISON, Wis.—(INS).—Prospects for Wisconsin in the intercollegiate grid tilt here Saturday with Auburn were brightened today by a definite announcement that Harry Kramhold, sophomore guard, is eligible.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(INS).—Either Art Schultz, a letter man, or Ed Snagely, a sophomore, are expected to start at fullback in Illinois' first Big Ten game of the season Saturday against Purdue. Ed Schak, regular fullback, suffered a minor injury in the St. Louis game.

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—(INS).—The Purdue varsity rested today after hard practices in preparation for meeting the Illinois here Saturday. Coach Kiser expressed satisfaction today with the Boilermakers' offense, but declared the team is still ragged on defense.

Sport Oddities

Jim Mooney, sensational southern pitcher of the Giants, teaches school in the winter for $1,000 a year.

Walter Brown, Jersey City moundsman, is a resident of Mountville, W. Va.

Baltimore has two Weavers on its pitching staff but both belong to major league clubs. Monte with Washington and Jim with New York.

Ray Starr of Rochester has pitched three double headers this year and won five of the six games.

Clarence Mitchell, age 44, has won more games this year than he even won in any other season.

The latest pitching fad in the American league is the "sinker" copied from Wilcy Moore of the Red Sox.

The Cumberland Colts wear the 1930 uniforms of the Yankees.

Sunday baseball would have enabled the Athletics to make $250,000 more profits this year.

The Louisville Colonels gathered their 1932 rookies this summer with a sandlot baseball school which drew 250 boys.

The Middle Atlantic league has an umpiring staff of eighteen men.

DEAN'S SON
Roscoe Metzger, son of Dr. Fraser Metzger, dean of men at Rutgers university, probably will be a regular guard on the Scarlet. He was a fullback in New Brunswick high but Coach Tasker made him into a running guard.

TYPES
Paul Schissler, head coach at Oregon State, classes all football men in three groups: first, the kind who must be convinced; third, the kind who must be driven—each an individual.

SUN BEAU AND MATE IN RACE

Famed Money-Winners
Head Entry List
At Hawthorne

CHICAGO.—(INS).—Mate and Sun Beau, two outstanding stars of the American turf, will match speed and stamina this afternoon in the fourth annual running of the $25,000 Hawthorne gold cup at the Hawthorne track.

The two famous money-winners head a list of entries which includes four other prominent candidates for Chicago's fall racing classic. These are Jim Dandy, Plucky Play, Brown Wisdom and My Dandy.

C. V. Whitney's contract rider, Jockey Albert Robertson, will be Mate's mount, while Johnny Malen will ride Sun Beau. A fast track was in prospect.

Sun Beau has won the last two runnings of the Hawthorne gold cup. If he wins again today it will be the first time a handicap horse has captured a rich prize three times successively since Exterminator won the Saratoga gold cup in 1919, 1920 and 1921.

A MARK
The New York Giants under John McGraw in 29 seasons have finished in second place eleven times besides winning ten pennants. Four times in third, two times in fourth, once in fifth and once, 1915, in eighth.

BACKS
Southern Methodist has plenty of experienced backs this year. Seven letter men are available for duty back of the line. Twelve other men listed as backs are from the reserves and last year's yearlings.

CAPONE NEVER PAID ANY TAX

Argue on Admission Of Evidence Into Court Trial

James H. Wilkerson instructed the jury to retire while he heard the arguments of the lawyers.

Slantz had been handed a letter granting Lawrence B. Mattingly an attorney of Chicago and Washington, power of attorney to represent Capone in income tax matters. This power was for the purpose of enabling the gang chieftain to straighten out his affairs with Uncle Sam.

This letter was the storm center of a legal controversy a week before the trial opened when attorneys for Capone attempted to obtain it under a bill of particulars. At that time Judge Wilkerson denied Capone's counsel the communication.

In the letter the statement is made that "Mr. Capone has never filed an income tax return"—a statement regarded as vital by the lawyers for the government. In the communication Capone was described as being eager to make adjustments with the government on his civil liabilities.

Mattingly had correspondence with the internal revenue bureau in Washington with reference to the adjustment of Capone's income taxes. He also had a conference with the bureau of internal revenue at Chicago. At that conference Capone is said to have admitted he owed the government income taxes for years back and was willing to make an adjustment.
